February 27-28, 2009, Varna, Bulgaria
Addar 1-3

Dear colleagues, astrologers, scholars, students and lovers of the Sky.

Today, the 27th of February, 2009, being the first day of the new month Adar, the Moon was high into the sky, brilliant and beautiful like a Venetian gondola, appearing almost at the same time with Venus. Ishtar was high above the Moon and only six days away of her elongation.

With the previous month Shabat having 30 days, the Moon has perfected its cycle.

Also, Jupiter appeared six days ago and Saturn is making his Acronychal Rise after four days.

Under such brilliant auspices I am exalted to announce the descent into our world of:
